Since 2007, Drew Collins has been dedicated to helping his clients reach their financial goals. He was given the opportunity to understand and appreciate the importance of the financial advisory business from an early age by watching his father Lee Collins, who has been a member of Frieden Wealth Management since 1991. As Lee is currently approaching his own retirement, both Drew and Lee are focused on a smooth and efficient succession plan, which will ensure that the advisory needs of Lee's clients will continue to be met for decades to come.

Drew is primarily focused on collaborating with business owners in order to assist them with their personal wealth management and retirement planning goals, as well as their company retirement plans and business succession planning needs. He seeks to provide proper guidance that will benefit the business owner, their employees and the business as a whole. Drew also specializes in assisting professionals and high net worth individuals with their investment and retirement planning needs. In order to create a well-rounded strategy for his clients, Drew is also versed on several protection products such as life insurance, disability and long term care insurance. To further address his clients' wide range of needs, Drew has formed relationships with Hampton Roads law firms that work in the areas of business law, elder law, and estate planning. Through these relationships, Drew is able to provide his clients with a team approach, utilizing sophisticated techniques to address their financial and estate planning needs. Drew prides himself on the close relationships he has with his clients, and finds immense gratification in helping them with their financial goals.

Drew was born and raised in Virginia Beach, Virginia. He graduated with a Bachelor's degree in Business from Radford University in 2005. Drew is currently pursuing his professional designation of Chartered Financial Consultant (ChFC). He is a current member of the Million Dollar Roundtable, an association that recognizes the top investment and insurance professionals around the world. Outside of the office, Drew enjoys spending his spare time on the water. Some of his favorite hobbies include boating and deep-sea fishing.

As an active member of the community, Drew is currently involved with local community youth sports, and has been involved with the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation since 2007.
